Marital Rights and Duties in Islam

Upon entering into a valid religious marriage contract, both spouses assume obligations and are entitled to rights, the most important of which are:

1. The husband is obligated to provide for his wife, which includes housing, clothing, food, and health care, in accordance with the social standard of living (urf).
2. The wife is obligated to observe the husband's authority in matters related to the rights, sanctity, and welfare of the family, as well as in marital intimacy, except when there is a legitimate excuse.
3. Both spouses must live together in kindness, with mutual respect and good conduct.

It is highly recommended that those intending to marry review jurisprudential works to become familiar with the detailed rulings.

Marital Rights and Duties under the Law

The details of personal status laws in the United States of America and Canada vary from one state or province to another. Therefore, it is advisable, prior to conducting the Islamic marriage contract, to consult a qualified expert who is well-versed in the relevant state or provincial laws. There are many important matters that the spouses should be aware of—particularly those concerning the exercise of personal freedoms, ownership of property, child custody and rights, and similar issues. It is further recommended that such matters be discussed, agreed upon, and incorporated as conditions within the marriage contract to safeguard against and prevent potential disputes in the future.

The Religious Formulas That Must Be Pronounced by the Spouses or Their Representatives, Depending on Each Case and Its Specific Conditions

The Islamic pronouncements that must be uttered by the spouses or their representatives, depending on the specific case and its conditions. The following are four possible formulas to choose from depending on the situation and circumstance:

1. Marriage performed directly by the wife and husband themselves:

The wife addresses the husband directly, saying:

“Based on the Sunnah of Allah and His Messenger, I marry myself to you for the agreed-upon dowry, which is [amount] (advance of [amount] and a deferred portion of [amount]),

The husband responds:

“I accept the marriage upon the declared and agreed upon dowry.”

End.

2. Marriage performed by a representative for the wife (such as a religious scholar) and the husband:

The wife’s representative addresses the husband, saying:

“Based on the Sunnah of Allah and His Messenger, I marry you to my client (state her name) for the agreed-upon dowry, which is [amount] (advance of [amount] and a deferred portion of [amount], which becomes due upon [condition]).”

The husband responds:

“I accept the marriage to your client upon the declared and agreed-upon dowry.”

End.

3. Marriage conducted by two representatives, one for the husband and one for the wife (such as two religious scholars):

The wife's representative addresses the husband's representative, saying:

"Based on the Sunnah of Allah and His Messenger, I marry my client (state her name) to your client (state his name) for the agreed-upon dowry, which is [amount] (advance of [amount] and a deferred portion of [amount]), which becomes due upon [condition]."

Then, the husband's representative says:

"On behalf of my client (state his name), I accept the marriage based on the declared and agreed upon dowry."

End.

4. A third party, such as a religious scholar, acting as the representative for both the husband and wife simultaneously:

The third party first says:

"Based on the Sunnah of Allah and His Messenger, I marry my client (state her name) to my client (state his name) for the agreed-upon dowry, which is [amount] (advance of [amount] and a deferred portion of [amount]), which becomes due upon [condition]."

Then, the third party continues:

"On behalf of my client (state his name), I accept the marriage based on the declared and agreed-upon dowry."

End.

In the Name of Allah, the Beneficent, the Merciful

Allah (swt) says in the Holy Qur'an:

"And of His signs is that He created for you mates from your own selves that you take comfort in them, and He ordained affection and mercy between you. There are indeed signs in that for a people who reflect." (30:21)

Prophet Muhammad (pbuh&hp) said:

"He who marries attains half of his religion, and he should fear Allah in the second half [of his religion]."
